

SUMMARY

Subject of the thesis: Latin America in the context of the global world political process

Author: Evdokimova Yuliya

Academic Adviser: Mishin V.E., Assistant Professor, PhD, Political Science

Organization: School of International Relations, Chair of International Relations, World Economy and International Law, Pyatigorsk State Linguistic University.

Relevance of the research issue: Under the influence of globalization, the world is changing actively in all spheres, changing the content and priorities of the world political process. The role of Latin America in world politics, which are actively seeking to adapt to the new geopolitical realities, its place in the modern system of international relations. Today, they are increasingly confident act as independent subjects of global politics, actively involved in international economic and political processes.

In this context, the Latin American vector of Russian foreign policy is particularly significant as one of its priority areas in the current conditions, and determining the relevance of this study.

The purpose of the work is to determine the role of Latin America in a global world political process, as well as identifying the main factors and perspectives that determine the foreign policy of Russia in the region.

Research objectives:

- To analyze the main methodological approaches to the definition of "world political process" as a category of political science;
- To identify the specifics and peculiarities of the modern world political process in the context of globalization;
- To analyze the condition and dynamics of development of Latin American countries in a global world, defining the continent's place and role in today's world political processes;
- To determine the main directions, the possibilities and prospects of Russian foreign policy in the Latin American region.

Scientific novelty:

- The role of Latin America in the context of the global world political process is defined;
- Peculiarities and prospects of the Latin American vector of Russian foreign policy are revealed.

Structure: the two chapters, containing four paragraphs, the conclusion and a 103-reference bibliography (forty two of which are in foreign languages) and the four Appendixes. The total volume is 76 pages.

Summary: Undertaken by us in Chapter 1 analyzes the different theoretical and methodological approaches to the concept of world political process and its trends in the global world are allowed to reveal its features in modern conditions as a multiaktornost, transnationalization, the increasing interdependence of internal and external policies of the integration processes and to come to a conclusion that the world political process is a course of political development in the planetary scale, reflecting the dynamics of development of relations between countries and peoples, the global transformation of the political reality, the basis of which is the realization of how their national and civilizational interest, sustainable development of the world community.

In Chapter 2, we focus directly on the subject of our research - the identification and determination of the dynamics of the place and the role of Latin America in the contemporary world political process and in the foreign policy of Russia. The analysis of a wide range of scientific publications, conceptual documents of the Russian authorities in some countries of the Latin American region, the media material led us to the conclusion that in recent years relations between Russia and Latin America have gained a completely new dynamics of development, becoming an integral part of world politics, forming a model of the interaction between the development centers, one of which is Latin America.

All this gives rise to a sufficient degree of legality claim that Latin American vector is now one of the priorities of Russia's foreign policy strategy, meets the national interests of the Russian Federation, the task of positioning confident country in the global international political arena.