

SUMMARY

Research topic: Modern foreign policy of Russia and Swisses.

Author: Vladislav Dolgov Vitalevich

Supervisor: doctor of political Sciences, Professor Viktor Nicolaevich Panin.

Organization: Institute of international relations; Department international relations, political science and world economy; PSU.

The relevance of the research topic. Russia and Switzerland for a long time time is a profitable partner for cooperation, as on the world stage, and in bilateral relations. Switzerland and Russia have already identified areas where cooperation can be beneficial for both countries. One of them – health. Switzerland is one of the leaders in this field, supplying high-quality equipment to Russia, which makes it useful and important partner. Other important area interaction-energy. Russia, being an energy giant, it occupies a Central place. Being a reliable supplier hydrocarbons'. However, Switzerland has something to offer. It's coming, first of all, about the technologies of energy saving and environmentally friendly productions. Despite the current political situation and sanctions, countries have great potential for cooperation. So Swiss enterprises make large investments in various industries Russian economy. Russia is the largest exporter mineral resource. At the political and strategic level, Switzerland mainly it is of interest to Russia as a potential intermediary in relations with the European Union. Based on the above, the study of modern development Russian-Swiss relations are relevant.

The aim of the work is to study foreign policy Switzerland and Russia, as well as Russian — Swiss cooperation. Achieving this goal involves setting and solving following task:

- to study the geopolitical position of Russia and Switzerland;
- to study the development of relations between Russia and Switzerland;
- to explore the role of Russia and Switzerland in international relations;

- to identify the basis of cooperation between Russia and Switzerland;
- to analyze the prospects for the development of Russian-Swiss relations'.

The scientific novelty of the research is that the work the bases of cooperation between Russia and Switzerland are revealed many areas: political, economic, health, in trade and tourism, as well as the development of socio – cultural relations. Having a large number of common interests is beneficial affect the relations between the two countries. This allows us to understand that cooperation between Russia and Switzerland is very promising and has great plans for the future.

The structure of the graduation work. This work consists of an introduction, two chapters, consists of five sections, conclusions and bibliographic list, consisting of 75 sources, 7 of which are foreign language. The total volume of work is 75 pages typescript.

Summary: Russia is one of the main partners of Switzerland. Two. countries have many common interests. Russia, as a member of the UN Security Council and the G20 is a major international player. Since the signing of the Memorandum of understanding (MOU) between our foreign ministries in 2007, bilateral cooperation withwearing developed significantly. The MOU defines a framework for systematic-closer cooperation in the areas of: – foreign policy and security – justice, police and migration; – economic and scientific issues; – education and culture. Representatives of both foreign ministries meet regularlythey are for consultations. There are close contacts in the parliamentary level, with active parliamentary friendship groups in both countries. Since March 2009, Switzerland has represented Russia in TtiliXI and Georgia in Moscow after the collapse of diplomatic relations between Russia and Georgia in 2008. Russia is a large market with significant potential for the doormancompanies. Switzerland is committed to creating optimal conditions for Swiss business and has an action plan for the development of economica relationship to achieve this goal. Bilateral combined ecothe nomic Commission meets on an annual basis. Swiss Business center, which is integrated into the Embassy Switzerland, advises Swiss companies intending to enter the Russian market, and promote Switzerland as a place for business. In the field of education and science, the Embassy of Switzerland supports close contacts with relevant ministries, with many Russian universities and research institutes. He promotes exchange and cooperation between educational and scientific — research institutes in both countries and supports their potential for innovation. For this reason, on 17 December 2012 the Russian Federation concluded a bilateral agreement on science and research with Switzerland and Russia regularly consult on issues of human rights. Since 2003, bilateral consultations have been held at the annual basis in Switzerland and Russia alternately. Both countries also regional conflicts are regularly discussed. Switzerland supports small projects in the field of human rights. Since 1997 together with Russia works on the implementation of social work in Russian prisons, and since 2009 — on the reform of the juvenile justice system. Since 2007, our countries have also cooperated in the field of prison health. Business and human rights are also one line of business. The Embassy of Switzerland supports project to improve conditions for employees participating in training for the world Cup 2018 in Russia. Switzerland also supports the project to promote humanitarian dialogue in the North Caucasian. At the multilateral level, cooperation is carried out within the framework of international organizations, especially the UN Human Rights Council, Council of Europe and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE.)