

SUMMARY

Subject of the thesis: Traditional and modern ways of permission of the international conflicts.

Author: Gantemirova Fatima Magometovna.

Academic Adviser: V.E.Mishin Professor, PhD of political sciences.

Organization: Institute of International Relations, Chair of International Relations, World Economy and International Law, Pyatigorsk State Linguistic University.

Relevance of the research issue: is defined by that the problem of the conflict is one of key in the international relations, reflecting features and a condition of the interstate relations in various stages of development of human society, various approaches and concepts in definition and an assessment of a factor of a conflictness in interaction of actors on the world scene.

The international conflicts have dual character. On the one hand, they can be considered how one of driving forces of development of system of the international relations as by means of them problems which constrain development are solved or destabilize system, pushing participants of the international relations to search of ways of permission of these problems or to their elimination.

On the other hand, the modern international conflicts are the main factor of instability in the world. Being badly operated, they tend to growth, connection of the increasing number of participants that creates serious threat not only to the direct parties the conflict, but also to all world community.

The purpose consists in identification of a role of institutional factors in settlement of the international conflicts.

Research objectives:

- to reveal on the basis of the political analysis intrinsic characteristics, structure, functions and levels of the international conflict;
- to investigate and типологизировать major factors and the conditions causing the international conflicts in modern conditions;
- to reveal the most effective ways and means of settlement of the international conflicts in modern conditions;
- to define a role of Russia and its participation in settlement of the arising international conflicts and further prospects of this activity.

Scientific novelty of research: the presented complex characteristic of the category "international conflict" and its author's definition, identification of the factors leading to the conflicts, conclusions about the reasons of insufficient efficiency of mechanisms of the intergovernmental organizations in settlement the mezhdunakrodneykh of the conflicts, and also institutional factors offered to the account (legal and structural) such settlement define, their use in foreign policy activity of Russia.

The structure of work: is caused by logic of research and 11 sources in foreign languages consist of introduction, 2 heads including 5 paragraphs, the conclusion and a bibliography of the used literature from 71 sources, including. The total amount of work makes 80 pages of the computer text.

Summary: The international conflict is understood as an aggravation of a contradiction of interacting subjects of the international otnoksheniye concerning the interest subject, passing into counteraction with nachakly its practical mastering (statement). In our opinion, such definition allows to open essence of the international conflict, причины, the purposes, the moment of transition of contradictions in the conflict.

The international conflict arises from contradictions and develops only under certain conditions. Condition of continuation of the conflict является its continuous ideological and material feed. Non-performance of these conditions conducts to its attenuation or transition to the frozen state. Contradictions in the international sphere will exist while there are the social communities having specific interests and, therefore, there will be also prerequisites for the conflicts. Problem of the world community - to learn to settle them, without bringing to a vookruzhenny stage of the conflict.