The results obtained:

Undoubtedly, the mechanism of interaction between national and international law is a system of interrelated elements - legal phenomena. The peculiarity of such a system is that it uses the elements of various legal systems, and the effectiveness of this mechanism depends on the correctness of their harmonious combination.

The realization of the interests of states is achieved by bringing together legal means of a legal nature, in other words, convergence of the contents of the regulatory requirements of both legal systems. In the growing process of globalization, such rapprochement is extremely necessary. At the same time, the interests of states are also converging, "overgrown" with mutual ties. And, consequently, it becomes a necessity, and the unification of the norms of both legal systems, at least, the creation of favorable conditions for their interaction in the law enforcement sphere.
