

Abstract
Graduation Level of Proficiency Paper
(Bachelor degree)

1. 2017

2. Title: Linguistic and cultural aspect in the practice of teaching Russian as a foreign language.

3. Author: Kamishnikowa Daria Alexandrovna

4. Research Supervisor: Osipov Stanislav Konstantinovich

5. Specialization: 48.03.01 – Theologie ("Orthodox Theologie")

6. Bachelor degree

7. Higher School of political management and innovation management

8. Chair of Language Arts and Pedagogic Technologies of Philological Education

9. Topicality of the research: The fundamentalism is complex and many-sided phenomena that has cultural and historical roots and performs various function in society, both constructive and destructive. It is commonly known that, the phenomena of religious fundamentalism are able to consolidate people, forming extremist and radical moods in society, which, undoubtedly, have impact on main spheres of society: political, social, economic and spiritual. Thus, the problem of religious fundamentalism is topical.

Objective of the research: the creation of methodical recommendations to reduce social tension by analyzing the state of religious fundamentalism in modern society.

Tasks:

- analyze influence of religious fundamentalism on the world view of the individual;
- to reveal the concept and social nature of the religious fundamentalism;
- analyze the historical aspects of the formation of fundamental organization;
- to consider the special aspects of the religious fundamentalism in modern Russia;
- to explore methods of preventing social tension and inter-religious conflicts;

- to identify the prospects of solving the problems of religious fundamentalism in modern Russian society;

Theoretical and practical significance of the research. The results of the research make it possible to discover new capabilities of preventions of religious fundamentalism in the process of theoretical analysis. The graduation project “Methodological recommendations for reducing social tension by analyzing the condition of religious fundamentalism in modern society”, created on the basis of Graduate Qualification Work materials, can be used in further research on the problem of religious fundamentalism and its prevention, as well as in the activities of centers of thought, political and social institutions.

Results of the research is the development of recommendations for the prevention of religious fundamentalism in society. Thus, recommendations for the prevention of religious fundamentalism are:

First, to direct the attention of representatives of centers of thought, political and social institutions to the conflict nature of religious fundamentalism;

Secondly, considering that religious fundamentalism gives rise to radical and extremist processes in society, it is necessary to develop methods of preventing the destructive influence of these phenomena;

Thirdly, the solution of the problems of social tension and confessional conflicts which are consequence from the processes of religious fundamentalism, call for state participation and representatives of the religious confessions of the Russian Federation by building inter-confessional and consolidation state-religious relations;

Fourth, in order to prevent and regulate the activities of radical fundamental organizations, it is necessary to develop the institution of mediation, as well as conduct analytical work.