Summary

Subject matter: Coordination and regulation of the state-confessional and inter-confessional relations in modern Russia.

Author: Zhabelova Zhamilia Takhirovna.

Supervisor of studies: Osipov Stanislav Konstantinovich, candidate of history, associate professor, chair of historical and socio-philosophical disciplines, oriental studies and theology.

Customer organization: Khutova Alia Aslanovna.

Topicality of the research: In the Russian Federation for the last decades the position of the religions and religious associations has undergone cardinal changes. In the process of the transformations there took place the formation of the new legal principles of the system of the state-confessional relations. The concrete forms of the interrelationships between the state and religious organizations began to shape up.

The events that have taken place for the last two decades in our country testify to the effect, that the sphere of the confessional relations proves to be most sensitive to the current political and socio-political changes. The principles of the social relations that had changed in the radical way resulted in the fact that the religious-ethnic self-awareness of the peoples grew to a considerable degree and the ethno-confessional factor began to play a significant role in the socio-political life of the society. This was promoted in the first place by the democratization of the social life, formation of the freedom of thought and will and also the creation of the open Russian information space.

Without the solution of the topical problems in the sphere of the state-confessional relations our country's development will be hindered and their disregard can throw it several decades back from the civilized road of its development (which already took place in the Soviet historical past of Russia).

Objective of the research is the study of the efficiency of the coordination of the inter-confessional relations and the determination of the role of the state in this coordination and of the perspective relations and the ways of the state policy in the sphere of the optimal interaction with the main confessions registered in the RF.

Tasks of the research:

- to determine the theoretical and methodological principles of the study of the state-confessional and inter-confessional relations in modern Russia;
- to reveal the conceptual foundations and the specific features of the state confessional policy in modern Russia;
- to highlight the role and place of religious tolerance and freedom of conscience as the principles of the coordination of the inter-confessional interaction;
- to analyze the work of the Russian organs of the state power over the regulation of the state-confessional and inter-confessional relations in modern Russia;
- to determine the role of the legal norms in the coordination of the inter-confessional relations in modern Russia;
- to determine the tendencies of the development of the state-confessional relations in the modern Russia.

Theoretical and practical significance of the research is the attempt to formulate the theoretical principles of the essence and content of the state-confessional and inter-confessional relations. The problems of the coordination of the inter-confessional interaction with the organs of state power were also analyzed. The conducted research enabled us to formulate a number of recommendations for practical specialists in the local organs of power. The materials of the thesis can be used in the working out of such teaching courses as “The topical problems of the religious policy in the RF” and “The concepts of the religious policy in the history of the Russian state”.

Results of the research: We have determined the theoretical and conceptual principles of the state-confessional and inter-confessional relations in Russia. Within this research we have examined one of the forms of the inter-confessional interaction, the form of cooperation. The analysis of the work of the Russian organs of power enabled us to detect the advantages and drawbacks in the regulation of the state-confessional relations. The emphasis was placed on the work of the state дума committee for the affairs of the public associations and religious organizations. We determined the role of the sources of the legal regulation in the coordination of the inter-confessional relations in modern Russia.

Recommendations: We presented the draft proposal for the creation of the inter-confessional consultative council (at the level of the municipal formations) on the territory of the Kabardian-Balkar Republic.
