ABSTRACT
LINGUOCULTUROLOGICAL FEATURES OF LOANS OF ECONOMIC LEXICON
(on the material of the English language)

Graduation Qualifying Thesis from:
Pyatigorsk State University
Institute of the International Service, Tourism and Foreign Languages
Chair of the Theoretical Linguistics and Practice of Intercultural Communication
Author: Akhtirskaya Anastasia Petrovna

Main parts: Contents, Introduction, three Chapters, Conclusion, Bibliography, List of Reference Literature and Internet Resources, six Addenda.

Keywords: communication, cross-cultural communication, the global status of English, linguoculturological interrelation, international language, global language, domain classification, linguoculturological analysis of lexical loans of the economic orientation, internationalism, term, incorporation of foreign language units in the lexical structure of English.

The present paper is devoted to the determination and description of the mechanism of formation of the English language as a communicative base of national cultures taking into account the revesive mechanism of linguoculturological influence on English in the aspect of formation of its lexical structure.
The processes of borrowing taking place at the lexical level of the modern English are the object of the present final qualification research.
The subject under study is the etymological and linguoculturological features of the lexical loans of economic orientation functioning in English.

Chapter I "Communication and its interdisciplinary character" is devoted to the investigation of the concept "communication", its role in the modern society, and also to the identification of the relationship between culture and language in the aspect of cross-cultural communication.

In Chapter II "The global status of English and its linguoculturological interrelation with national languages" the definitions of the terms "international language" and "global language" are given, the comparison of the concepts "global" and "international" is carried out, the characterization of the global status of English and its linguoculturological interrelation with national languages are carried out, the historical stages, spheres of functioning, extralinguistic and linguistic factors of globalization of English are revealed.

In Chapter III "Domain classification and the linguoculturological analysis of lexical loans of economic orientation in English" the differentiation of the concepts "loan" and "internationalism" is carried out, the reasons of their emergence and also the reason of incorporation of foreign language units in the lexical structure of English in the sphere of economics are established, the classification of the English terminological loans in the sphere of economy is carried out, the etymological and linguoculturological analysis of the lexical units of the economic orientation borrowed by English is made.